Learn Everything Related With Tapestries

The history of tapestries is long and glorious. Loved and appreciated through out the different ages for their innate sense of beauty, tapestries have been used for centuries to decorate homes. Tapestries have been used since at least Hellenistic times; however they reached a new stage in Europe in the early fourteenth century AD. The first wave of production originated in Germany and Switzerland and then spread to France and the Netherlands. By the 16th century, Flanders had become the centre of European tapestry production. In the 19th century, William Morris resurrected the art of tapestry-making in the medieval style. Tapestries are still made at the factory of Gobelines and a few other old European workshops.

Tapestry is a form of textile art. It is woven by hand on a vertical loom. It is weft-faced weaving, in which all the warp threads are hidden in the completed work, unlike cloth weaving where both the warp and the weft threads may be visible. In this way, a colourful pattern or image is created. Most weavers use a naturally based warp thread such as linen or cotton. The weft threads are usually wool or cotton, but may include silk, gold, silver, or other alternatives. The term Tapestry is also used to describe fabric made on jacquard looms. Tapestry upholstery fabrics and reproductions of the famous tapestries of the Middle Ages are common products of jacquard looms.

The elegance and charm of tapestry is such that they have been used for centuries to add a touch of class and glamour to homes and nowadays even offices. Tapestries are normally used as wall hangings that lend an imposing touch to its surrounding. The exquisite beauty of tapestries, their intricate detailing and the myriad themes from which they seek inspiration make it a true art form that is aesthetically appealing and yet of immense practical value. Tapestries draw inspiration for their imagery from Art, Romance, Renaissance, Landscapes, Hunting Scenes, and Oriental concepts, Floral and still life and many more. Apart from wall hanging tapestries are also made into cushions, pillows, handbags and other home décor accessories.

We at tapestry-tapestries.com offer you nothing but the best in terms of quality of product, pricing and customer service. We also offer free shipping worldwide.
